

John Flanagan ... 'Poet/Carver'

By Rod Fraser

John Flanagan was a poet 'by trade'.
He loved the work; but he never got paid.

He turned to whittling to earn a quick buck.
He put in the hours, but it was never enough.

One bright morning, a whittler named Ray,
Told John 'The Carver' how he could make it all pay.

Create a new type of work that combines all you know.
Call it 'Poet/Carver', then give it a go.

Now John 'Poet/Carver' — who was feeling so low — is pleased to report he's rolling in dough.